

Editor's Comment:

This study demonstrates how extrusion technology may be used to create sustainable snack products from underutilized fish resources, which is a great approach for addressing both food security and economic growth. It is deserved to be published.

However, only one note that in the "Results and discussion" part need cite some references and referencing some existing studies and comparing your findings to them is crucial.

Editor's Details:

Dr. Yi-Ren Hong
College of Medicine, Graduate Institute of Medicine, Kaohsiung Medical University, Taiwan.