Rust diseases, septoria, and FHB, which have long been among the main biotic threats to wheat production globally. Throughout the year, grain yield was significantly higher than the untreated control, and foliar bio pesticide G_BP, applied at a rate of 1 l/ha mixed with 200 l/ha of water, significantly reduced the severity of the FHB at field condition and improved yield, HLW, and TKW at both years. Control of disease by biopesticise is useful to increase yield and also non harmful to beneficial insect pest of crop.
